

What We're Made Of

Driving innovation with nature-based ingredients

Take a look outside. Where most people see just a lily pad, an orange peel or seaweed, we see ingredients. Powerful ones, too. Their uses are many, ranging from everyday products to specialty applications. Nature-based ingredients aren't just our passion. They form the center of everything we do at CP Kelco.

It's not every day you meet a company this dedicated to customer service and quality.

We're a global company of 2,000 nature-based ingredient enthusiasts. But our interests don't stop at ingredients. We're also devoted to customer service, which makes sense given how much we collaborate with customers.

Our global network of scientists, engineers, supply chain and quality management specialists, and customer service representatives allows us to provide reliable consulting, development and support services. It keeps our relationships strong and ensures we provide the right products for the right formulations. Our ingredient portfolio has grown over the years, as well as the variety of industries we now serve.

Quality and consistency are at the core of our business. Some may view that as a tall order, but it's a standard we have kept for over 85 years.

Recognized across industries for our manufacturing and food safety standards, we are leading the way in how nature-based products are being produced.
