DRIED FRUIT POMACE

ready to use in food and feed industry

Our dried pomace is produced mainly from fruit of Polish origin and is available in various fractions. The powder pomace is widely used in the animal health and feed industry, as more and more manufacturers have been creating healthy pet food recipes that contains natural fibres and other nutrients. The dried pomace is also used for polyphenols extraction. These are healthy ingredients found in dietary supplement formulations. We specialize in blackcurrant and aronia pomace, both of which are rich in anthocyanins. Anthocyanins are not only a health-promoting natural food additive but also can be used as natural colorant in many food applications. There is a possibility of vacuum packing, protecting against air and light.

NATURAL DIETARY FIBRES

Dietary fibres are processed by micronization of dried fruits parts and dried vegetables, dried peels, dried pomace, grain husk/shell or grain bran. Our technology allows the product to be micronized into powder with a particle size of even less than 10 microns. All fibres are 100% natural, insoluble and clean label powders, without chemical treatment and without additives. All our fibres were designed for the fast-growing market of food producers who want to create healthy natural recipes with high fibre content.
